Quality Issues
Product Quality Issues: Activated Charcoal is listed in the U.S. Pharmacopoeia. Poison Control Center recommends this for use in poisoning.

Additional Information
Wood is burned in a reduced oxygen fire. Then the charcoal is activated by blowing steam through it. By doing so the surface area is greatly increased.

Usage Warnings
The high adsorbency may reduce the effectiveness of certain medications. Consult a physician before taking this with other medications.

Not recommended for children under 13 years of age except under the supervision of a physician.

Excessive use may prevent absorption of important nutrients.
